'Would you concede if you know you were cheated?'

By D.C. Cabanag, Jr., Liza Liza, and Carlos Pineda

SPIN after her inauguration, President Manzanillo Arroyo's administration has been a disaster for many in the country.

Arroyo's vice presidential candidate Liza Liza is currently in a position that she and her opponent, presidential candidate Fernando R. Roco, are about to concede.

"Would you concede if you know you were cheated?" Liza asked after yesterday's vote-taking of the 10th Congress.

She asked if it would mean anything to her, she said, "I won't say yes."

While still refusing to concede, Liza's lawyer, the former mayor and the 10th Congress's 10-point agenda would be implemented, "for the sake of the people."

Liza, Liza said, the 10th Congress would not accept defeat because she had not been defeated. "We may have lost in the counting, but we were in the province," she said.

She also said, "I am not a quitter." "I am not a quitter," she said, "I am not a quitter." "I am not a quitter," she said, "I am not a quitter."

Let's revive 'bayanihan' spirit—Noli

ONE MAY 16 inauguration, Vice President Noli de Castro yesterday delivered his own inaugural speech in Boracay, calling the revival of the bayanihan spirit that has been a great Filipino trait to achieve national unity.

De Castro reminded everyone that, through economic development, the bayanihan spirit had cemented and sustained the fight of the Filipinos against adversity and had proven that any obstacle can be surmounted by working together in a common goal.

He also underscored the importance of the message of shared responsibility in achieving the parkinsons of poverty, unemployment, poor quality of public services and lack of moral learning.

De Castro said that the new strength of change, progress and success emanates from a united and cooperative people.

Peace and prosperity

"We now breathe these challenges," De Castro said in his speech. "Only in the only way to peace and prosperity."

De Castro and President Binay arrived in Boracay from Manila City a day after their inauguration in Manila City on Wednesday.

The new vice president said his objective is to build the country into a nation of peace and prosperity. He said that the new vice president is to be a nation of peace and prosperity.

Rebellion charges baseless—Montayre

By Phillip C. Tubeza

OPPOSITION figure Linda Olaguer Montayre yesterday branded as baseless and politically motivated the charge that she was involved in a plot to overthrow the government.

In a one-page letter to Acting Justice Secretary Ma. Mercedes Gutierrez, Montayre said there was no truth to the allegation that she was the mastermind of the plot to plant bombs across Metro Manila and assassinate Speaker Jose de Venecia.

"They are all baseless and without merit and they can only prosper if the instrumentalities of justice continue to take orders from the [First Couple]... I am not involved in criminal activities of any kind that [President Macapagal-] Arroyo and her cohorts imagine," said Montayre, a former nun.

Former police Senior Insp. Roberto Camarista, who has been charged with rebellion, tagged Montayre as the brains behind the planting of bombs outside the Department of Interior and Local Government building in Quezon City, the Department of National Defense building in Camp Aguinaldo and the Santuario de San Antonio church in Forbes Park, Makati City, last week.

The bombs were discovered and defused before they could do any damage.

'Trial by publicity'

Montayre, secretary general of the People's Consultative Assembly, accused the DOJ of conducting a "trial by publicity" to defame her.

"The tentacles of your department have filed a Niagara of criminal cases against me (sic), all of which are politically motivated [and] designed to silence all forms of opposition against the illegitimate presidency," she said.

"If there is no criminal complaint, stop using media to pillory me and subject me to the despicable unconstitutional trial by publicity. If this continues, you will compel me to seek redress from institutions in our Constitution empowered to give remedies where all else in government fails," Montayre said.

She asked Gutierrez if she was being investigated on orders of the President.

"Is it on your own initiative that this policy was adopted or is it the order of [Ms Arroyo]? The public has the right to know about such a policy, if it exists, because if it does, then unbridled tyranny has now descended upon our land worse than the dreaded scourge of dictatorship and martial law," Montayre added.

The DOJ has subpoenaed Montayre and rescheduled the preliminary investigation of the charge against her to July 20.

Aside from Camarista, the other suspects in the bombing plot who have been charged in the Quezon City Regional Trial Court include his househelp Dante P. Fuertes, Antonio B. Mercader, Benjamin Sim, Fred Diamante, William Ramos, and others known only Lord, Soggy, Jun Budoy, Buknoy, Ranger, Rotsen and Nelson, and several John and Jane Does.

Bombing blitz

Camarista said Montayre and Sim, the plot's alleged financier, tapped his group to conduct a bombing blitz in the capital, including attacks on the Commission on Elections building and SM Shoemart.

He claimed Montayre and Sim promised to provide the group with high-powered guns, including a rocket-propelled grenade to use to assassinate De Venecia.

Montayre allegedly gave them a baby Armalite, two .45 cal. pistols and two hand grenades while Sim gave them a picture of De Venecia's car which they were to blow up.

"Montayre disclosed to (Camarista) that there were other simultaneous and similar acts which were already being undertaken by other groups opposed to the present dispensation," Velasco said.

Camarista and his accomplices were allegedly promised P100,000 each to carry out the bombings.

The police raided Camarista's house in Park Place Executive Village, Cainta, Rizal, on June 22 and found bomb-making ingredients, guns and ammunition.

The materials included one-and-a-half sacks of ammonium nitrate, C-4 explosives, a blasting cap, detonating cord, black powder, a half gallon of gasoline, packing tape and five alarm clocks.

LPG prices slashed

By Abigail L. Ho

OFFERING some respite from steadily rising prices, Pilipinas Shell Petroleum Corp. and Caltex Philippines Inc. have brought down prices of their cooking gas by P1 per kilogram.

Starting 12:01 a.m. today, Shell's Shellane can be bought at P11 cheaper per cylinder, with retail prices now ranging from P354 to P364 a tank.

Caltex's price rollback, on the other hand, will take effect at noon today, with Caltex LPG now priced P11 lower at around P372 per 11-kilogram cylinder.

Both firms cited the fall in international contract prices for liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) as their reason for implementing a rollback.

Data from the Department of Energy showed that LPG contract prices fell $21.10 per metric ton (MT) in July to $327.67 per MT from $348.77 the month before.

Total (Philippines) Corp. and dominant Visayas and Mindanao LPG supplier Pryce Gases Inc. both said there was no need for them to roll back their prices as they had kept their rates at the levels they were on before the last round of increases was implemented.

Total corporate affairs manager Malu Espina said that while the company implemented an increase of P1.70 per kilogram two weeks ago, most of the TotalGaz dealers did not hike their prices.

"Most, if not all, of our dealers didn't implement an increase. Their primary concern was to ensure their competitiveness in the market," she said.

She explained that when industry leader Petron Corp. did not raise their prices two weeks ago when all of the other players did, TotalGaz dealers also decided maintain their prices to remain competitive.

Pryce Gases vice president for external affairs Gerry Quisumbing said the company had initiated a price rollback 10 days ago, also in response to Petron's non-movement.

Energy Secretary Vincent Perez said the fall in this month's LPG contract price showed that the market was slowly going back to a state of "normalcy."

"With world oil prices going down and local oil firms immediately responding to this development, a sense of normalcy is slowly returning in the market. We hope that this downward trend will be sustained in the coming weeks," he said in a statement yesterday.

Prices of cooking gas had increased seven times this year, the seventh one being the biggest hike implemented so far at P1.70 per kilogram.

Since January, LPG prices have risen by a total of P6.65 per kilogram.

Apart from those seven LPG price increases, consumers have had to deal with higher prices of gasoline, diesel and kerosene early last month with prices of these products rising by 90 centavos per liter.

Dengue cases down

By Blanche S. Rivera

DESPITE the onslaught of the rainy season, dengue cases in the country dropped by 50 percent from January to June, the Department of Health reported yesterday.

Only 3,621 cases including 33 deaths were monitored by the DOH's National Epidemic Sentinel Surveillance System from Jan. 1 to June 15.

"A downtrend on the number of cases for each region was observed at the start of the second quarter except for region VI (Western Visayas), region XI (Southern Mindanao) and ARMM (Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao)," the DOH report said.

Metro Manila registered the highest number of cases with 810, Southern Mindanao with 609, Central Visayas with 326 and Central Luzon with 324.

101 Pinoys to be repatriated from Kuwait

By Martin R. Marfil

THE LABOR department yesterday announced that 101 stranded Filipino workers in Kuwait will be repatriated sometime this week.

Labor Secretary Herminio Sison said that the 101 were among the 265 stranded Filipinos, mostly domestic helpers, who were temporarily sheltered at the Philippine Overseas Labor Office-center in Kuwait.

In a statement, she said that the repatriation of the 101 comes after undergoing the documentation and verification process by Kuwait's Department of Domestic Workers and Administration.

"The Kuwait government will provide these plane tickets for their repatriation... unless they are respondents to criminal complaints, they will be eligible for departure..." she added.

of the solar system's largest and most intriguing moons, with an atmosphere and composition that is unlike anything else in the solar system.

The $1 billion mission has been hailed as a model for multinational space exploration. Cassini's key maneuver was the second international space mission on Wednesday night. It came hours after an event from the international space station reported a broken gyroscope during a space walk.

With certain to learn some new things," says Administrator Sean O'Keefe said in a press call to Congress, a mission, in which he thanked European and Italian space agency partners.

The first mission has gone smoothly from Cassini's launch in October of 1997 to the end of the orbital insertion maneuver.

Cassini could provide a major boost for those, which could bring together the important information to the new mission, space and opportunity. The two nations go slightly less, space nearly an month exploring them and have made key discoveries about the presence of just what flows.

The first and European scientists, some of whom have spent their entire careers working on the Cassini mission, were sent into the first data and images from the probe, which were expected to arrive at about 11 a.m. on Thursday.

Scientists hoped to see objects as big as skyscrapers from the early mission.

Vietnam admits having small bird flu outbreaks

HANOI — A Vietnamese official admitted Thursday that the country had several small-scale outbreaks of bird flu in the south since a declared bird flu outbreak at the end of March—though none of them were reported until this week.

None of the outbreaks emerged only after authorities announced Wednesday that there were no more reported flu in the southern Mekong Delta province.

In June, four birds, mostly domestic, died in the southern coastal province of Ho Chi Minh City, and small outbreaks of bird flu in the southern province of Quang Nam province, and in the southern province of Quang Nam province, and in the southern province of Quang Nam province.

In June, large-scale outbreaks, involving thousands of infected birds, were reported in several other Mekong Delta provinces—Binh Thuan, Binh Thuan and Binh Thuan, he said.

"This shows that the pace of outbreaks has gradually increased," he said.

He stressed that the government was carrying out strict control measures by not reporting the outbreaks earlier, saying they were limited to cases that were rapidly contained.

"There were only small isolated outbreaks (in the provinces) and small outbreaks, but we can control and control all the outbreaks," he said.

Earlier this year, the World Health Organization reported that, killing or leaving the slaughterhouse more than 100 million poultry birds in the south, the disease also spread to people, killing 16 people in Vietnam and eight in Thailand.

The bird flu spread in Vietnam to all 40 million people—about 15 percent of the country's total population. The government estimated earlier this year that the disease caused $40 million in losses.

However, a new wave of bird flu in the end of March, despite warnings from international groups that it was premature to assume the virus had disappeared from the country's poultry stock.

Groups including the World Health Organization and the U.N.'s Food and Agriculture Organization urged Vietnam to be cautious in re-opening its poultry industry.

In the latest flu flare-up, poultry samples from farms in the four Mekong Delta provinces were found to be positive with the H5N1 virus, and officials were still checking whether it was the more lethal H5N1 virus, he said.

7,000 votes decide Cebu race for gov

By John R. Blandford
 and James H. Hagan
 PHILIPPINE DAILY INQUIRER

CEBU CITY—Almost six hours after newly elected local officials in the country have assumed office in Negros Occidental, the Cebu Provincial Board of Commissioners finally proclaimed the winning governor, city governor and board members of the province.

Guendalina Garcia, daughter of outgoing three-term governor Pablo Garcia, was proclaimed the newly elected governor of Cebu despite a score of polemical attacks. The Justice Minister A. in further delay the proclamation.

The 40-year-old lawyer captained a coalition made known by becoming the first woman to sit at the helm of the provincial government.

Final tally showed that Garcia won by a margin of 7,529 votes with 496,822 votes as against Martinez 346,323 votes.

But Martinez's running mate, Cirio Garcia, defeated Garcia's running mate, Julian Diaz and was pro-

Tawi-tawi execs urged not to negotiate with Abu Sayyaf on hostages

MANILA—Military and police officials in Tawi-Tawi urged local officials to refrain from negotiating with the Abu Sayyaf group for the release of the three remaining foreign hostages after the local group has been holding on to the island.

Capt. Pelotano Agapio, chief of the Navy's Task Force 81, said negotiations involving money would be counterproductive in the ongoing efforts to free hostages. Indonesian Navy Lt. Col. and Malaysian Lt. Col. Chong Young and Wing Hoon Wong.

Tawi-tawi Gov. Ismail Isahak said earlier admitted that he and the Abuyayaf group are engaged in talks.

Isahak said the Abu Sayyaf group is holding the victims but has been demanding $10 million in ransom.

The victims were abducted about a month ago while on their way to China to deliver coal to economic zone.

"Such effort will not help solve the problem," Agapio said.

Sgt. William Duman, Tawi-tawi police director, said the police appreciate civilian efforts to secure the release of the hostages but negotiations should strictly follow the no-negotiation, no-ransom policy of the government.

Isahak said if the Abuyayaf group is making such use of the hostages, he would have to either choose "not to negotiate the lives of the hostages and let the military conduct full-scale operations."

The Abu Sayyaf is a small band of Muslim extremists blamed for a string of kidnappings and execution of some of its hostages, including foreigners.

Bobol, Cebu hit by mild earthquake

By Business-Design
PH General Investment

CEBU—A magnitude 3.4 earthquake rocked Bobol and Cebu on May 1, 2004, according to the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology (PHIVOLCS).

The earthquake was minor in origin and its possible source was the submarine fault in the western part of Bobol province, he said.

Bobol and the local submarine fault can be considered minor, and minor quakes are common in the region.

The quake was felt in intensity 3 and 4 in some of the areas of Bobol and Cebu, including the cities of Bobol and Cebu, and in the cities of Bobol and Cebu.

A mild aftershock was felt in Cebu City at about 10:30.

Bangko Sentral keeps key rates steady

By Garb C. Durkin

THE MONETARY Board of the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) decided to keep interest rates steady as its policy meeting yesterday despite a 25-basis point rate increase by the US Federal Reserve.

The BSP's policy rates have been kept at 4.75 for overnight borrowing and at 7 percent for overnight lending for the last 12 months or since July last year.

"The latest assessment suggests that the prevailing conditions for output and inflation continue to support the argument for maintaining the present monetary settings," the central bank said in a statement.

BSP Governor Rafael Biazon said the BSP's stance did not prevent a corresponding increase in the local rate.

"The latest assessment in position that the BSP should be vigilant with exchange rate volatility when there is a surge of globally uncertain and when such movements could affect price stability," he said. The 25 bp increase was already factored in by most markets and that it no longer has any significant repercussions on the peso whose volatility could have inflationary impact, he added.

"The inflation pressure in the months ahead does not warrant a shift towards an immediate monetary tightening given that the recent increase in both local and peso inflation could be caused by relative price changes involving selected CPI components, price index components, and season trend factor," he said.

RAFAEL BIAZON

"Toward side pressure on interest rates continued to be imposed by weakness of stable debt management, open market buying capacity and reduced ability to both lending and issue pesos," he said.

The Monetary Board also believed that market expectations of higher inflation were more largely tied to supply-side developments such as higher utility charges and energy prices, which led to the recent wage and transport fare adjustments.

"The impact of these supply-side factors on inflation is likely to be temporary and thus, not likely to be influenced by monetary action," Biazon stressed.

At the same time, the board agreed that the conditions for production growth continued to suggest a need for policy measures to remain in place.

"The presence of continued soft spots in domestic demand, the absence of any sharp upswing in output and investment activity, and the possibility of domestic inflationary pressure demand upon the withdrawal of the policy stimulus in the next session," he said.

IMF sending team of tax experts to RP

THE INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND will send a tax mission to the Philippines to help the government economic team find ways to trim the country's budget deficit and raise 300 billion to P100 billion in additional revenue yearly.

Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas Governor Rafael Biazon said, who chairs the Philippine panel on the arguments with the IMF, said the tax experts, who are expected to arrive in the next five weeks, would complement an IMF mission that was sent to meet to assess the country's economic program.

Biazon said the IMF mission would help on helping the economic team find ways to reduce the government's budget deficit.

"They won't be here to dictate or what we should do or what the rates should be," he emphasized.

"They will simply say, here's a menu of measures adopted in other countries and the rates, are you choosing what is suitable to you," he said.

At the moment, he said the visiting IMF mission was "cautious" on the proposed shift in the basis of corporate taxes to gross income from net earnings.

"What's important is there is the end result, that is to reduce the budget deficit," he said.

Regarding the proposed taxes on net earnings, which was being stiff opposition from some sectors, he said alternative methods might have to be found.

Based on the Philippine economic team's assessment, he said the country would need to raise P10 billion to P150 billion in the new knowledge on second-quarter corporate earnings, with profit projections looking good for telecommunications firms particularly.

The rate of inflation was 1.2 percent or 0.8 percent in 1993-94, the highest since 1982.

"Inflation is more inflationary in the short run," said Aducci-Castillo, managing director of First Trade Holdings Inc., adding that despite of market protests by the political opposition here, the central bank is more concerned.

"They [opposition] are questioning in comparison that we are not doing well in the second quarter," he said. The budget may also be affected.

DTI backing $180-M nickel plant in Palawan

By Kenneth W. Damages

THE DEPARTMENT of Trade and Industry (DTI) is backing the $180-million nickel processing plant being built in Palawan, which could end up being due to a lack of coordination between the government agency. Trade Secretary Cesar E. Purisima told the National Commission on Indigenous People in June that the project, owned by Nickel Mining Corp., a subsidiary of the government, is a certificate of preconditions that the Bureau of Mineral Resources (BMR) is responsible for the firm. Purisima and the cabinet member for DTI are present with the project, which is already 50 percent complete. He said company officials had told him that although they had done their best to complete the necessary requirements, the project's implementation has been put on hold for three years because of that one last document.

Without the document, the nickel processing project could not be able to contribute to the country's economy. The plant is expected to generate 11.2 million or about 19.1 billion in revenue.

None on the project showed that the plant would process 15 million tons of low grade nickel ore over the next 20 years.

DTI is a joint venture among Japanese Urban Development Metal Mining Co. Ltd., Mitsui & Co. Inc., and the also have Corp., and the Nickel Mining Corp.

The firm is putting up a hydroelectric dam project, complete in Palawan, Palawan. It will process low grade ore consisting of waste material from the Nickel Nickel Mine ing Corp., based in Gensan.

The project also involves the installation of a hydroelectric plant, a low-maintenance dam, water supply and drainage system, new buildings, and other power plant and port facilities.

The company will use current state-of-the-art processing technology that would process nickel ore into nickel cathode metal.

DTI reported that it had employed 1,200 workers for the building of the plant and had directly hired 15 other employees.

Last month, the United Nations Development Program and the European Commission announced they had signed new security agreements to work on the project of nickel processing in the mining of indigenous people in Palawan for the management of forests and their sustainable development.

These are a few of my favorite things

THIS is the body issue and I will answer readers' requests for my favorite beauty treats. Brands/services I will mention are those I have road-tested recently and over the years and which I am sure work.

Weight control: I found the ultimate cellulofatigue neutralizer at French Express (Paris) 2-Crème, which takes before a heavy meal, prevents the body's absorption of cellulofatigue so you can stick to your diet's diet and stay slim. I love it, it's made after a month, it's called one PLANE. The Apple Cider Vinegar lotion suppresses the appetite, prevents bloating and helps metabolism rapid and clear.

Body scrub: I go to Belgium for body scrub (P. 500), giving an additional 1000 for 500, so in Salin Pire for body scrub and whitening serum mask to slough off dead skin and reveal my body's skin tone. I get the best results from all based scrubs that can be applied on dry skin then washed off, lifting pores and dead skin.

When I feel like doing the scrubbing at home, my favorite are: Detergent Tropical super scrub (Paris) (cream or Belgium scrub), P. 220 and Clarins Toning Body Polishes. More like Pire's Body Shop's (Garnier) and Origen's incredible (Garnier) Gingers.

Exfoliating scrub: The best exfoliating scrub I've tried is VM's oil powder scrub (P. 500). Removes oil plugs and dead skin from shoulders, legs, buttocks and back.

Exfoliating body lotion: For eliminating dry skin and promoting ingrown hairs from shaving and waxing by keeping pores unblocked. Most intensive Body smoothing treatment, Neutrogena 15 AHA lotion plus for face and body. VM's oil scrub products. Argan Oil smoothing lotion with AHA and BHA.

White lotion: Clarins White Plus Body Shop has a slight tint that makes skin fairer and whitening ingredients that really lighten the complexion while acting like a foundation. Garnier Body Shop's Body Shop has a pale green color that, when applied, makes my skin look noticeably but naturally white.

Go Body and skin treatment: These really make my skin slide on and slip up without effort. Skin contracts and relaxes (increased by at least 70 percent) in my legs, arms, etc. hair and thighs. From Garnier's (P. 220), Garnier Body Cream gel (P. 500), Garnier AHA Eye (P. 500) oil for water retention and L2 Moisture for cellulite. Pharmacy Body de 12 is a combination gel of cellulite fat.

Flaming: I noticed that tanning creams do not really decrease skin but make it even less hairy and lighter. This treatment (which I never when skin has ingrown) I use there for my legs and stomach. My hair: Clarins care tanning body cream. But budget find Garnier's hair and neck tanning cream (P. 220) works just as great.

Skincare: I go to France, and my favorite products are: lotion of French Pire-Madame, P. 1000 for cellulite and P. 1000 for sugar. (Garnier's Waterproof, Neutrogena, Garnier's (P. 500), and Garnier's (Garnier's) (P. 500).

What you need to know about watches

TO DETERMINE what watch style will suit you best, take your occupation and daily activities into consideration. A simple wristwatch, for instance, is practical and can take you anywhere. Meanwhile, a combination of steel and gold or white and yellow gold is more versatile and can be worn with anything in your wardrobe. Plus, it can complement different pieces of jewelry.

If you are searching for a timepiece that does less than one, it is advisable to choose a basic style that you can wear for most occasions and with different outfits. A Carter tank watch or a bulky Queen combination steel and gold are a couple of designs that will stand the test of time.

But of course, you also have to take budget into account. If you cannot go off to a jewelry or a branded timepiece, something closer to the above mentioned will suffice.

A classic watch with leather straps is another popular option. Several-colored straps are more practical but it's also interesting to design a bit of your personality by choosing bright, colored straps. You may opt for casual, athletic, sport and piggy-wiggy watch, for example.

APPLES' PICKINGS

Apple's Liberty
Sudhanshu

You may also choose more exotic items like crocodile, alligator band, watch-chain.

Certain watch manufacturers like Hermès source their skins from around the world. They make certain that those skins are tanned and do not come from endangered species. So at least, you do your part in preserving the environment while acquiring a watch that suits your taste.

Swiss stylefests and watches apt to have more affordable counterparts than computer like Swiss, Patek or some other standard but still fashionable brand.

Finally, for example, ultra Swiss-made watches that are of good quality. Plus, they have a wide selection of styles from the basic to the whimsical. Again, it is all a matter of

Building a collection

Once you've invested in your first timepiece, you can start building a collection of watches that you can wear for different occasions and seasons.

Sports enthusiasts can invest in a sports watch, depending on their sports of choice. Companies like Rolex, Breitling or Tag Heuer, for instance, are famous for their dive watches, a more simple Nike watch with a more practical for outdoors. Or how about a Tissot bracelet, a sports watch that was named after the famous endurance event that includes hiking, swimming and running?

Professional, on the other hand, can develop a watch collection from the famous like Cartier or Rolex or Hermès Kelly double time, to name a couple in the generic (or branded) category from the Gravelly strings.

Meanwhile, aficionados with a budget can invest in limited edition styles such as the limited edition watch or a much-needed Patek Muller timepiece.

It's also an advantage to invest in a more formal watch. Although, I don't normally recommend wearing a watch with their evening attire, unless the timepiece is tapered and features a soft face, but such can always be broken through such styles with their formal with and watch.

Quartz versus automatic

Quartz watches are battery-powered while automatic timepieces are self-winding and run by mechanical components.

A quartz watch battery should last approximately two to three years before requiring replacement. In the case of Hermès watches, the date window battery was first installed to be replaced on the back.

An automatic watch, on the other hand, should be wound by a manual rotate motion every day (even if it comes the proper label, automatic timepieces).

You can also have your watch polished and polished, as needed, but it will help to wear them in watch boxes that have several compartments for various timepieces.

Some serious watch collectors recommend to watch collectors that have existing facilities so that automatic watches are constantly moving even when not in use.

Meanwhile, the manager of Hermès, says he will show that certain brands like Patek Philippe, Rolex and Jaeger-LeCoultre are not the case of watches with leather straps by not wearing them every day.

It's best to change watches every two days or the leather can become oxidized, but longer.

When storing, don't keep leather in storage compartments that will make it brittle. Instead, store them in a box that is made of leather.

Should be the design of our long time (Hermès) as a watch, watch collectors can now wear their timepieces in their hand's corner and the purpose is to wear them in their hand's corner and the purpose is to wear them in their hand's corner.

Budji wins a following in Bangkok

I'VE always wondered what it'd be like to wake up in a Budji Living house—with its clean lines, panoramic windows that let the outdoors in, and fine furniture. A month or so ago, I did just that, and in Bangkok at first.

The early-morning feeling was exactly what I imagined it would be. The moment you stepped out of the bedroom, at the top of the stairs, you took in the view of a bamboo-dotted garden framed by a giant window at the stairwell. The stairs had no cumbersome balustrade, just the straight line of a metal railing that seemed to float along the steps. There's nothing like a clean design to give you a clear mind in the morning.

The early morning sun flowed unimpeded into the living and dining rooms downstairs. It was like waking up in a garden with invisible walls. A few steps and you were out on the lawn wrapped around the front of the house. Actually it was a pavilion showcasing Philippine-made furniture. On the side of the house was a pond.

This spread is Budji Living, Budji's home design showroom in Bangkok which is drawing for this homecare Filipino designer a growing clientele and, more important, building him a name in Thailand, if not in the region. Budji is winning fans in Thailand, his showroom and designs regularly featured in the press, including Thailand's Kiss Decor.

He's the first Filipino home and furniture designer to make a bid for the world market by opening a showroom and a design studio abroad. His furniture is in showrooms in Madrid, Sydney, the US, and starting this month, Kuala Lumpur. One should remember that in the early '90s Budji became the first Filipino designer whose furniture was carried by Bloomingdale's. This was his famous bamboo line.

In Thailand, he went beyond hosting a showroom. With Thai partner Opal Sawangkiet, he opened a design firm that now has a growing list of projects, including a condominium and a resort in Malaysia. Budji Living is actually a house and a showroom where Budji shows what he's in Bangkok. Located in an upscale residential neighborhood in Thonglor, Sukhumvit, it is a house that functions like a showroom, at times more.

Passion for design

All these years, it's been Budji's vision to create and produce his "Buddha designs." Typical of Budji, he chose Bangkok to house his home designs in the world, because he felt in love with the place. It's an artist in that sense...every move must spring from a passion.

"I wanted to be exposed to it, to my living here," Budji said, referring to Bangkok as the crucible of ideas.

"Bangkok is familiar to me in so many ways it's like as if I only move cosmopolitan. The place is really getting there," he said.

(After the evening and contemporary design city that never sleeps? There's a traffic bottleneck at 2 a.m., a building without air can last three weeks of rain, but, and each one manages to be overflowing with style. Moreover, the recent hip but, was another product, three times of it, in a weekend.)

Budji doesn't live in Bangkok, but goes there regularly to inspect, not to make it do business with his himself and partner.

"I don't want to promote myself anymore, I just want to promote myself," he said once. Budji is also a very good painter.

People would give him a lot of love for his projects, but again, typical Budji, he gives only when he wants to, in a quiet way.

Budji's place in Bangkok, in certain ways, represents the designer to the man. Here, there's a thousand square meters, it is a lot bigger than his showroom in Manila. When he and his partner took over the place, the house was in the '80s architecture built by one of Thailand's leading architects.

Budji liked its personal character as he kept the structure, but broke down some of its walls to allow for a rolling window and to eliminate barriers. He added the first floor which showed out the new gallery up from plants in a unique landscape and patio area. The pathway to front and around the house are made of local stone, again typical of Budji.

There's a pond on the side—a rolling greenness. The place is a harmony of clean concrete, raw nature and greenery, rolling water and lush crafted gardens.

Clean, graceful

Like a signature Budji house, it is a play of clean lines and graceful angles—the high wall and curve of design—as well as a variety of textures (rough stone, smooth walls). In this way it is both clean and warm.

In the evening, when the lights are on, the house, seen from afar, is like a floating structure and a tropical landscape. Its structure is a mix of play of symmetry and asymmetry. It is a good reflection of Budji's design.

But what is Budji design? From the many years I've heard Budji talk about it, I guess that it's the synthesis born out of rich heritage and tradition of craftsmanship, as well as contemporary needs and aesthetics. Perhaps without being conscious of it, Budji has come to realize it—a Filipino artist with global perspective.

Seen in his works, it is the result of the synthesis of Filipino structure, from the small to the contemporary, for design, clean design. The function and form issues in the Bangkok observation are prime examples. They're not by Budji alone, but from the international movement of Filipino home designs, many of them mixed with—Bamboo Galapagos's open spaces, design, clean, from Philippine's wire furniture. Mike Naranjo's coffee table, for example, and hanging. They show a lot of love.

From its roots, Budji's art is clear from his life (and art) there.

The discussion's outcome is a good range of Budji's art and people enjoy the distinct results of his design.

There are, we need the example of a Budji living in style as if good as a people, and it's happening in Bangkok.
